We are writing to tell you that you do not qualify for disability benefits.

Why We Can't Pay You

You do not qualify for disability benefits because you have not worked long enough under Social Security,

We calculate work under Social Security in credits. Please read the enclosed pamphlet, "How You Earn Social Security Credits," which explains how the credits are earned and how many a person must have to receive benefits.

Since you do not have enough work credits to qualify for benefits, we did not make a decision about whether you are disabled under our rules.

Other Social Security Benefits

You are not due any other Social Security benefits. In the future, if you think you may qualify for benefits from us, you will need to apply again.

Need Help Getting A Job?

If you want to ask about counseling, training, and other services to help you in going to work, contact the nearest state vocational rehabilitation office. Go to our Office of Employment Support Programs website at Choose the state where you live and it will provide your local vocational rehabilitation agency's address and telephone number.
